STUDENT LIFE

LIVING & LEARNING

ONE DAY AT A TIME...

Quincy fans join together to support Hawk Soccer.

Day in and day out, Quincy University students live, learn, and work together to maximize the educational and life experiences to be found in a close-knit, Franciscan

Catholic, liberal arts institution. With its smaller student body, close ties between community members, and enclosed campus, QU allows each student "a chance to shine, the friendliest campus in the Midwest, and a greater degree."

A day at a time we strive towards reaching our goals, and a day at a time we learn through our togetherness. A day at a time we continue to make our home the One & Only "U".

Q U I N C Y

The 1995 orientation theme, "Quincy University. . . To A Greater Degree", led new students on a three week whirlwind of activity. From moving in on August 19, to the "Hawk Walk" on September 9, new students barely had time to catch their breath.

Events like "Getting to Know U at QU", the student organization club fair, and "Late Night with Jim Naumovich" were held to ease students into life here on campus. Other activities, including a community outreach day, a trip to Wavering Park, and a Habitat for Humanity Walk-a-thon were held to orient students with life in the city of Quincy. Programs on AIDS, date rape, and creative dating provided the opportunity for learning outside of classes. Meanwhile, a movie and ice cream social on the A-field, comedian Maryellen Hooper, and musician Pat McCurdy provided the opportunity to kick back and relax.

Returning to the orientation program was the establishment of color groups. The groups were led by one or two members of the orientation committee and consisted of about 20 new students. Color group meetings allowed students to receive help with any problems they were having, make new friends, and win prizes from local businesses.

Also new to the '95 orientation scene was an academic convocation for new students.

FALLFEST 1995

Singer David Harris performs for the opening of FallFest Weekend.

This year marked the 21st anniversary of a unique Quincy University tradition, FallFest Weekend. In 1974, noting that QU is a tradition for many families, the typical Homecoming & Parent's weekends were combined to create FallFest Weekend, an opportunity for families to gather within the larger QU family. Student Senate and the Campus Activities Association provided a weekend filled with activities that appealed to everyone and gave ample opportunities to socialize and relax. FallFest 1995 saw fantastic attendance and a full schedule of activities, capped off by many home athletic contests. Concluding with the Campus Ministry sponsored FallFest Weekend Mass and Brunch on Sunday morning, FallFest Weekend 1995 was a major success.

FALLFEST MARKS A NEW SEASON

Sponsored by Student Senate and CAA, Fallfest is a tradition filled with music, comedy, sports, and fun. Beginning with the Hawk Walk on September 29 and ending with Brunch on October 1, Fallfest is an enjoyable time for all!

M O T H E R ' S

Students welcomed their mothers on campus to participate in a wide variety of events on Mother's Weekend, February 9-11, 1996. The weekend began on Friday night with bingo sponsored by Interhall. Prizes from Quincy University's bookstore and local establishments were awarded to the winners.

Saturday began with a special breakfast in the Student Union and then it was off to the craft show in the Gym Annex. Mothers were able to enjoy brunch in front of the famous Willer Hall fashion show as the main attraction. The mothers had the privilege of attending the women's and men's basketball games later that evening in the Gym. To top off a great evening, entertainment was provided by an acappella group from Chicago called, The Sound, in the Main Dining Room. The weekend came to an end on Sunday with a special mass in the Quincy University Chapel and a brunch following afterwards in the main dining room.

BORSTADT LUNCHEON

Quincy University is proud to honor the Stillwell Foundation as the fifth recipient of the Christian Borstadt Award. The John A. Stillwell family has been interested in and supportive of growth and welfare of Quincy and Quincy University for three generations. In 1941, after the death of John A. Stillwell, his sons donated the three story mansion at 16th and Maine to Quincy University for use as a student residence. Stillwell Hall served as one of the University's most prestigious facilities until 1981, when it was sold to the Quincy Museum. The Stillwell Foundation was established in 1959 for the purpose of contributing its income entirely to projects and charities in the city of Quincy. With three current members of the family being teachers, the Foundation has been especially interested in education. For many years it has supported an endowed scholarship at Quincy University, named in memory of Alan Duncan Stillwell. Other grants have funded visiting lecturers, the Partnership Fund, and most recently, WQUB 90.3FM, the University's radio station, and the construction of its new tower. The Stillwell Foundation's philanthropy has also benefited many other Quincy institutions, reflecting a tradition of love for and service to others that is the Franciscan ideal we honor through the Christian Borstadt Award.

INTRAMURALS

From heartstopping last second wins to crushing losses, Quincy University Intramurals can be put into a league of their own. Over the years intramural athletics have given students a chance to show off their athletic skills. This year was no exception. From football to pickleball, students were able to enjoy the fun that an athletic event provides. Along with the fun comes the never ending competition for the coveted pennant, the first place T-shirt! Teams ferociously compete for the bragging rights that first place gives them. Intramurals are for everyone. It doesn't matter whether or not you are athletic, it is the fun and the camaraderie that they inspire.

ONE FACE AT A TIME...

Bryan Martin shoots some pool in the Hawk's Nest.

It is important to learn the meaning of good relationships, whether they be student - faculty relationships or student - student relationships. At Quincy University, students are encouraged to communicate to faculty and other students outside of the classroom. Activities, like student mentor soccer games and cookouts, as well as movie night, and dances, are set up just for this reason. At Q.U. a friendly atmosphere lets students show their personalities to others, making them feel welcome and at home.

HAWK PRIDE

HAWK & LADY HAWK ATHLETICS

Carrie Bechtold sends off a shot while Camie Bechtold covers for a rebound.

ONE GAME AT A TIME...

Hawk defenders contain their opponent in the backfield.

This year the Q.U. athletic program officially began its membership in the Great Lakes Valley Conference. All Hawk and Lady Hawk athletic programs, except for Hawk Volleyball, Football, and Soccer programs, competed for Great Lakes Valley Conference championships. Hawk Soccer, was a member of the Mid-Continent Conference and the NCAA Division program, and joins the GLVC in 1996. Hawk Volleyball competed in the Midwest Intercollegiate Volleyball Association and Hawk Football, an NCAA Division II Non-Scholarship program, competed in the Illini-Badger Conference. Beyond the numerous conference affiliations, Hawk and Lady Hawk Athletics are a continuing source of pride and enthusiasm for Quincy University and the Quincy community. The student athletes continue to work hard to represent Q.U. in its best light and embody the spirit of the NCAA scholar-athlete.

PARTICIPATION

Q.U. ORGANIZATIONS

Students in the college bowl listen carefully as the next question is being asked. College bowl is an organization that combines academics with fun.

ONE GROUP AT A TIME...

Roots Rock Society performs at a CAA sponsored concert.

Students at Q.U. have a wide variety of clubs and organizations that they can get involved in. These organizations range from social groups, to academic teams, to athletic activities. Each club or organization gives the students a chance to make their one and only identity at Q.U. The wide variety of clubs gives everyone a chance to find something that interests them. If a student cannot find a club or organization that suits them, they can start their own club or organization and get other students involved with them. New organizations are added every year.
